

Burntwood School

Welcome to Burntwood School

We are challenging and preparing our students to become life-long learners: thoughtful young women determined to create their own futures. We believe in their potential, nurture their ambition and support their adventures. Burntwood girls want to participate with self-assurance in every endeavour. We are very proud of their achievements.

'Burntwood girls understand the importance of contribution.'

Being prepared

We want our students to be ready for any possibility. They must learn how to respond to change with confidence and clarity. They need courage to form their own opinions, to express their ideas and to defend their arguments. We must understand how they think, how they are motivated and how they learn as individuals.

'I'm positive about my future. I have the right foundations.'

Promoting independence

Burntwood promotes independence and freedom. We encourage our students to take control of their own learning, to ask questions and to discover things for themselves. All of our students have promise and opportunity. We celebrate their achievements and recognise their contribution to our success.

'Our students have real opportunities for independent life and learning.'

A photograph of three young women sitting at a desk in a classroom. They are all wearing red shirts and are smiling and talking to each other. The woman on the left is a Black woman with her hair in a ponytail. The woman in the middle has long dark hair and is wearing glasses. The woman on the right has long brown hair. They are surrounded by books and papers on the desk. In the background, there is a bulletin board with various papers and a poster that says 'è più grande del tuo'.

'We want to work as a team and shine as individuals.'

Working together

Burntwood girls learn about rights and responsibilities. We ask them to support each other, to solve problems together and to respect boundaries. We expect all of our students to behave with dignity and consideration for others. We make sure they have good role-models and a proper understanding of modern citizenship.

Time for learning

Burntwood girls have time and space to make their own discoveries. Our teaching methods adapt to individual learning styles; we aim to capture the imagination and curiosity of every single girl in this school. Each will find her strengths and limitations. Each will discover her talent and ability. No one is left behind.

'Burntwood girls make remarkable discoveries every day.'

Friendship & community

Burntwood is a community of friendship, trust and mutual respect. People here are accepted for their beliefs. We listen to each other, we are honest, and we believe in common standards of decent behaviour. Our students are sensible and patient. We value their opinions and believe in their commitment to learning.

'We understand each other. We respect each other.'

Contribution

Our students want to enjoy school and have fun while they learn. They want to contribute, interact and find wider meaning in their work. They need to learn how to apply their knowledge and skills to real-world situations. They must be prepared for uncertainty.

‘Burntwood girls learn to participate with interest and enthusiasm.’

Increasing confidence

Burntwood girls have important opportunities for self-expression. We challenge our students to go beyond their own expectations of what they can achieve, to take risks and to accept mistakes. New experiences broaden horizons, increase confidence, and inspire creativity throughout the whole school.

'We know there is something new for everybody at Burntwood.'
